

Pfizer Animal Health Adds Former Schering-Plough Products to European Portfolio

Wednesday, September 10, 2008 - 08:57am

(BUSINESS WIRE)--Pfizer Animal Health today announced that its acquisition of multiple product franchises in Europe from the Schering-Plough Corporation has been completed and approved by the European Commission. Pfizer has acquired these assets for approximately euro 116 million in cash.

The acquisition adds both biological and pharmaceutical products across the major animal health species including cattle, swine, equine and companion animal to Pfizer's portfolio. Pfizer has acquired certain rights to the following products in the European Economic Area:

The Gletvax range of swine E.coli vaccines The Equip range of equine Influenza and Tetanus vaccines The Covexin range of ruminant Clostridial vaccines Lactovac -C, a cattle neonatal vaccine Rabdomun, a Rabies vaccine Companion animal specialist products Insuvet and Eutha 77 The Autoworm range of parasiticides, Coopers Spot-On in the UK, Coopers Spot-on CY in Ireland and Versatrine in France Quadrisol 100, anti-inflammatory product

"This represents a significant expansion of our product portfolio and strengthens our long term commitment not just to veterinary surgeons, but also to farmers and pet owners," said Albert Bourla, Pfizer Animal Health's area president, Europe, Africa, Middle East. "Pfizer now has the most in-depth coverage of therapeutic areas in Europe, and the most highly recognized brands in the industry," Bourla said.

Pfizer, Inc (NYSE: PFE), the world's largest research-based pharmaceutical company, also is a world leader in discovering and developing innovative animal prescription medicines and vaccines. Pfizer Animal Health is dedicated to helping companion animals live longer and healthier lives, and to the safety of the world's food supply with healthy livestock and poultry. For additional information, visit www.PfizerAH.com.

Pfizer, IncRick Goulart, 212-733-7457